REMARKS

John: It is possible this might be of interest to CIA's man-for-PFIAB but I don't know who that may be - other than the DCI. 2: Who might it be? ME!

MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Operations

FROM: [REDACTED]

Chief, Counterintelligence Staff

SUBJECT:

Discussion with Clair Boothe Luce, 9 January 1982

1. You will recall my requesting your guidance some weeks ago concerning an oral request from Mrs. Luce, via CIA retiree [REDACTED] that I meet with her to discuss counterintelligence in order to help prepare her for her work on the PFIAB. You approved my doing this after, I believe, checking with the DCI. Since then she has been out of action with two surgical problems, but she asked me to meet with her at her Washington residence the afternoon of 9 January.

2. One does not really "brief" Mrs. Luce--I am not sure conversation with her can even really be called a "dialogue" but I did respond to her comments and occasional questions in what I believe was an appropriate manner. She is extremely concerned with the need to make the new PFIAB a useful part of our national intelligence organization; she is highly supportive of U.S. intelligence, CIA and our DCI; she is very articulate and also a most gracious hostess.

3. Mrs. Luce understands that she is to be chairman of a PFIAB subgroup on "covert activities." This she defines as including FI, CA and CI, which would make it in fact the group for our Directorate. Although I tried to concentrate our exchange on CI, she made quite a few observations on other aspects of our work. She believes harder questions should be asked and satisfactorily answered before major projects or commitments are approved. "Why should this be done secretly?", "Is it important that this remain really secret?", "What is the specific minimum goal that must be attained to justify this undertaking?", etc. A specific observation [REDACTED] is a conviction that

4. Regarding CI, she recalled her last involvement as being the old PFIAB's look at the [] case. She commented there were so many possibilities that it was impossible to conclude anything. I agreed, and told her that unfortunately no useful inputs [] had been received in recent years although it is reasonable to expect something someday. She observed (probably wrongly)

[] She also, from her PFIAB Team A/Team B days, recalled [] and had apparently accepted much of the press speculation about his death. I explained to her the facts of his suicide, which she seemed to accept--perhaps with some let down.

5. Mrs. Luce was quite interested in my observations regarding the switch in the KGB/GRU effort against Americans from a search for ideologically motivated recruits to mercenaries. Also in a discussion of technology loss and the extent to which this is a CI problem. We spent a few minutes discussing how best our CI approach should be organized. I acknowledged my belief that we should never let CI analysis become too compartmented differs from that of Jim Angleton, whom she knows but "finds confusing."

6. A main concern repeatedly mentioned by Mrs. Luce is that the new PFIAB play a useful role. She fears it may not, and expressed the opinion that Mrs. Armstrong should move to Washington as did former Chairman Ambassador/Admiral Anderson (and as has Mrs. Luce).
